Fairfax Circuit Court Expands Electronic Filing Resources to Three Industry Leaders

The Fairfax Circuit Court Clerk's Office has expanded its capacity for electronically filing land records and other documents. "Three e-recording industry-leaders, SimpliFile, CSC and E-Recording Partners Network, have joined the Circuit Court's Electronic Filing System," announced Clerk of Court, John T. Frey.

"This will have a significant impact on conducting business with the Court," Frey said. "Our new e-recording partners give the public another fast, easy, and reliable way to electronically file land records from remote locations, at any time without having to deliver paper documents to the courthouse."

The Fairfax Circuit Court Clerk's Office was one of the first recording offices in the United States to implement electronic filing of land documents, back in January 2002. Fairfax's electronic filing system has been continually expanded, since its inception. Since 2008, attorneys and title companies have been able to conduct their title search, hold the settlement and record the settlement documents, without stepping foot in the courthouse.
